KLAW THINKS LONDON LEADS IN LIGHT OPERA

Producer Says Musical Plays Are Better Staged and Acted There.

OUR ACTRESSES THE BEST

Producer Finds Mediocrity Among English Feminine Stars-Visits Caryll.

Special Cable Despatch to The Sun

London, July 24 .- Mare Klaw of Klaw & Erlanger, the theatrical managers, says London leads the world in the production of musical plays. Here they are better staged, better sung and better acted than elsewhere. They may not have so much movement or ginger in them as in the American productions but that is a mere matter of temperament. It is quite otherwise, however, with the drama. The productions are perhaps as good but the acting is not. Mr. Klaw added:

"You have many of the finest actors n the world, far better as a rule than there are in the United States, but you have few actresses who compare with the leading women of New York. This s probably due to the English actormanager system. Where a producing manager is also an actor he naturally hooses a play in which the male element predominates so as to display his own abilities to the best advantage. Under this handleap an actress has very little opportunity to ripen, and develop her genius, and the result on the whole is mediocrity. Women are best in the musical field because the producers are merely managers and realize the value of feminine stars."

Mr. Klaw is about to close the run of "The Pink Lady," although it is filling the house. This is because, as he says, there is no money in it with an American company. The salaries are too high for small London theatres at

Mr. Klaw was recently at Trouville on a visit to Ivan Caryll, the composer. who is writing a new score for the Anglo-American production of "Le Petit which has been a brilliant Parisian success. It just develops that Mr Caryll became a naturalized American

THOMAS ALEXANDER DEAD.

Fall in Well Fatal to United States Commissioner.

United States Commissioner Thomas Alexander, clerk of the United States Dis-trict Court in the Federal Building, died yesterday at Harriman. Orange county, N. Y., at the age of 58. His death was due to heart failure following a fall into a 13 foot well on the grounds of a new summer home which he had built on the summit of a hill overlooking the Ramapo Mountains across the valley from the estate of the late E. H. Harriman. He had a resided to the power. Harriman. He had expected to take possession of it in the near future. A telegram announcing his death was received at 2 P. M. by Commissioner Alexander Gilchrist, Mr. Alexander's friend of thirty-five years.

Commissioner Alexander had been living in the Ward Brower House at Harriman pending the completion of the new house. On the evening of July 2 he followed his custom of walking across the fields to the new building to see how the work was progressing. He was accompanied by his sons, Arthur and Nelson. The boys were a short distance behind him as he stepped on some boards covering a new brick well near the house. The boards gave way under his weight and he dropped to the bottom. Two ribs were broken and he sustained what the doctors later believed was a fracture at the base of the skull.

Mr. Alexander's screams were heard by his sons, and with the assistance of neighbors they lifted their father in a chair out of the well by means of ropes. He was then conscious. He was taken in an automobile to his home, where he had since been confined.

Commissioner Alexander's city home was at 14 St. Nicholas place. He was born on Washington Heights and had lived there all his life. At the age of 13 he entered the office of the United States District Court as an officeboy and remained there until 1878, when he resigned. In the meantime 1878, when he resigned. In the meantime he took up the study of law, being graduated from the Columbia law school about the middle of the '70s. In January, 1887, he was appointed a deputy clerk of the United States Disprict Court and on July 19, 1901, he was made clerk. He had been a United States Commissioner since January 1, 1887. He was a member of the St. Andrew's Society.

Mr. Alexander is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Annie Newton, and two son and one daughter.
